Asks That Stringent Laws Be Made Relative To The Coal On Public Lands.

WANTS APPROPRIATION MADE THAT

Land Thefts May Be Stopped And The Thieves Prosecuted To The Fullest Extent Of The Law At Once.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—President Roosevelt today sent to congress a long message calling attention to what he terms the "urgent need of legislation affecting the different phases of the public land situation in the United States." He advocates a conservation of coal and other fuel resources on the lands still belonging to the government, and urges the control of western public lands and pastures, with a system of small grazing fees, etc. He asks for an appropriation of half a million dollars, immediately, to aid in detecting and preventing land frauds. He says he cares little for details; but that the prime need is a system should be established. In conclusion he said:

"I wish to express my utter and complete dissent from the statements that have been made as to there being but a minimum of fraud in the actual working of our present land laws. I am exceedingly anxious to protect the interests of bona fide settlers and to prevent hardship being inflicted upon them. But surely we are working in their interests when we try to prevent the land which itself."

Thaw Case Brings to Mind Double Murder Which Occurred Thirteen Years Ago Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 13.—Attaches of the Four Courts, in discussing the Thaw murder trial in New York, recalled the fact that today was the anniversary of one of the most noted murders that has ever occurred in St. Louis. It was just thirteen years ago today that the entire city received a shock on learning that Dr. Arthur Duestrow, son of Louis Duestrow, a St. Louis millionaire, had shot and killed his wife and 3-year-old boy. The double murder occurred in the Duestrow home in one of the fashionable sections of the city. In the trial it was shown that Duestrow was a heavy drinker and was drunk at the time of the crime. A long fight was made in the courts to show that he was insane. Eminent medical experts were put on the stand and no expense was spared to save the accused man. He was convicted, however, and sentenced to be hanged and on the afternoon of February 16, 1897, he paid the extreme penalty of the law on the gallows at Union, Mo. Just before his death Duestrow confessed he was not insane and admitted his guilt.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 13.—Prominent women suffragists from every section of the country are already gathered here in considerable number and committee meetings are being held in preparation for the thirty-ninth annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, which will be formally opened tomorrow in Music hall of the Fine Arts building.

Those already here include Rev. Anna Howard Shaw of Swarthmore, Pa., the president of the association; Florence Kelley of New York, vice president; Kate M. Gordon of New Orleans, corresponding secretary; Alice Henry of Australia; Elizabeth J. Hauser of Ohio; Mary N. Chase of New Hampshire; May Wright Sewall of Indiana; Fannie J. Fernald of Maine; and Jane Adams of Chicago.

Among the other prominent speakers who will be heard are Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch, Caroline Lexow of New York; Dorothy Dix of Louisiana; Lucetta L. Blankenburg of Pennsylvania; Lucia Ames Mead of Massachusetts; Alice Henry of Australia; Elizabeth J. Hauser of Ohio; Mary N. Chase of New Hampshire; May Wright Sewall of Indiana; Fannie J. Fernald of Maine; and Jane Adams of Chicago.

Friday will be given over exclusively to a memorial to Susan B. Anthony, who died March 13, 1906. Among the speakers will be Mary L. T. Gannett of New York, president of the Susan B. Anthony Memorial Association; May Wright Sewall of Indianapolis; Harriet Taylor Upton of Ohio; and Rev. Jenkins Lloyd Jones. All state associations have been asked to consider a memorial fund and a decision may be reached during the day. A hospital, monument and large endowment fund are advocated.

On the last day of the convention will be a discussion on the ways to increase memberships in local associations. Rachel Foster Avery will preside. Kate M. Gordon of New Orleans, who holds the distinction of having voted more than 300 times at one election in her home city, will lead the discussion. When the law was amended so that women could vote in New Orleans it provided that they might cast their ballots by proxy. Kate Gordon was among those who thought that the city should have servers, and before election came, collected the proxies of more than 300 women, which she voted at the polls.

NORCROSS SPEAKS AT THE SIX O'CLOCK DINNER CLUB

Janesville Assemblyman In Demand At Functions In The Capital City This Winter.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 13.—Janesville has sent to the legislature a man who is in constant demand at occasions where the best speeches are in order—Captain Pliny Norcross. Whether it be a gathering of old soldiers, an assemblage of business men, or a company of learned professional men or members of the university faculty, Captain Norcross is ever desired to entertain, instruct and inspire. He is possessed of a richly stored mind, a wonderful flow of vocabulary, and is exceedingly ready in any situation. At the dinner of the Six O'Clock club last night he spoke on "An Outsider's View of Madison." This club is similar to the Twilight club of Janesville.

Assemblyman Norcross gave a talk which was stirring, and chock full of compliments to Madison and to the three organizations which have done so much to make it what it is—the Forty Thousand club, the Madison Park and Pleasure Drive association, and the Six O'Clock club. He said that Madison stood almost supreme as a city of homes, and that everywhere, all over the country, writers and speakers had paid tribute to its beauty and to the co-operative spirit of its people. This position, he said, had come partly through the lavishness of nature, but much was owed to the hard work done by the people themselves. He recalled the time forty years ago, when he first came to Madison to attend the university, and sat in the room he had chosen in the east end of the old north hall that he thought that he had never seen anything more beautiful than the view which spread out before him. That view still remains in much of its old time natural beauty, but still great changes have been made. Great buildings now stand on spots that were then bare, and excellent homes now dot the halls that were then covered with tangled trees. But Madison, in spite of those encroachments of civilization, has not suffered. Its people have carefully preserved the natural beauty wherever possible. The hills have been left as have also the streams singing down through the valleys, only there have been planted myriads of flowers, and roads wind in and out everywhere.

Madison, he said, was essentially a city of homes, a pleasant place to live, and he hoped that the Forty Thousand club would be content with its work when it had made Madison a city of 40,000 or 50,000 people. A city of this size, he said, was almost perfect. It gave people the opportunity of being neighbors and friendly, and to have homes in pleasant surroundings. He said that he would rather have Madison than Chicago, and that he hoped that the associations would work always to keep Madison what it is today, a city most desirable by all who know it.

He expressed the wish that the improvements be extended until some day they would join those which would be made by Janesville, and he could assure Madison that Janesville would do its part.

by $24,000 and increasing the powers of the library board caused lengthy debate, resulting in laying the bill over. Little legislative work will be done this week other than receive the bills introduced by title last week. Assemblyman J. Thomas, by request, introduced a bill to require the state board of agriculture provide on demand for each egg producing fowl in Wisconsin an automatic dating appliance to print on the egg when laid and its date of production.

Nine bills came into the senate last night, four from Senator Whitehead, to increase the punishment of thieves of gas and electric current who tamper with meters, tap mains or wires or otherwise secure service without paying for it. One bill makes this offense practically grand larceny instead of petit larceny.

By request, Senator Hudnall introduced a bill to cut off weekly newspapers from publishing official proceedings or notices unless they have a circulation of five per cent of the district.

The Göttingen municipal liquor license system is proposed in a bill by Senator Owen. This bill caused a fight in the last legislature, when Senator Stout introduced and pushed it.

J. P. N. Brown of Evansville were in the city last evening. Mrs. Charles Lyons and Miss Emma Lyons of Brodhead are visitors in the city today.

TWILIGHT CLUB'S
LINCOLN NIGHT

STUDY OF ANIMATE CREATION PARTICULARLY FITTING.

HONEST ABE LOVED NATURE

Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones Pointed to Appropriateness of Topics Discussed.

March meeting—Science Night.
Leader—Frank A. Taylor.
A. E. Matheson, leader of last evening's meeting, was instructed by motion to appoint a committee of five to arrange for "Ladies' Night."

After the usual banquet in the Y.
M. C. A. auditorium at half past six o'clock last evening members of the Twilight club paid tribute to Abraham Lincoln, it being the ninety-eighth anniversary of his birth, and listened to interesting discussions and descriptions of animal creation. Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones of Chicago, formerly pastor of the All-Souls' church here, was the guest of honor and in his remarks pointed to the peculiar fitness of the subject, Lincoln having been a great lover of nature, in fact the impostor of that true virtue and nobility which a study of animal life inspires in man.

Four "Tributes" to Lincoln.

Four speakers honored the memory of Lincoln. H. C. Buell, giving "a word of appreciation," said that this nation is prone to recognize his military heroes above others, but Lincoln is the exception. Rising out of obscurity into the highest place the government Lincoln's life and character are an inspiration. But one side of his temperament has been unem-phasized; and that is his sense of humor.
It was, as has been said, a safety valve on a melancholy life, but that same humor and repartee was responsible for his success. His genial good nature made him popular; gained him a captaincy in the Black Hawk war; elected him to the Illinois legislature; sent him to congress—started him on political career. When the congressional height had been reached he was ready to go farther, because he was the man with THE ISSUE. Early in life the "rail-splitter" saw the approaching disruption and when the crisis arrived he was prepared for it, he was the incarnation of the anti-slavery movement. Mr. Buell closed his remarks with Lowell's poem on Lincoln. Fred L. Clemens read the great war president's favorite poem:
"Why Should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud?" by William Knox, and George Kimball read Lincoln's famous letter to General Hooker, with the introduction and remarks prepared by Elbert Hubbard. Mr. Buell had remarked on Lincoln's mastery of English and Mr. Matheson read the family Gettysburg address, which was written on the way from the railway station to the field of battle.

The Wonderful Art.
"Birds, Insects and Animals, as Man's Friends and Enemies, and as Objects of His Sports," was the subject for regular discussion. This was taken up by Horace McElroy who talked on the ant. He said Darwin wrote that the brain of the ant is the most wonderful atom in the world and in truth it is for the ant comes the great war president's favorite poem:
"Why Should the Spirit of Mortal
be Proud?" by William Knox, and George Kimball read Lincoln's famous
letter to General Hooker, with the introduction and remarks prepared by Elbert Hubbard. Mr. Buell had remarked on Lincoln's mastery of English and Mr. Matheson read the family Gettysburg address, which was
station to the field of battle.

Game Warden Useless.
Mr. Matheson said he had found it difficult to persuade Halvor L. Skavlen to speak, but several lines were used on him and he was finally landed. The topic was "Birds" and in opening the speaker said he would not attempt to tell much about the feathered tribes but would endeavor to show the possibilities of pleasure in their study. Southern Wisconsin is particularly adapted for the study.
We have our birds that remain the year around, our winter birds and we are in the path of travel of the greatest number of North American migratory birds. Forty years ago all these kinds were more plentiful than now and it is certain that an extinction has been in progress. The so-called "sportsmen" who seem to kill wantonly, the boys who steal eggs and the animal enemies of the birds are not guilty of this destruction. All the game warden and game laws cannot preserve the game birds. The responsibility for this disappearance of birds is march of civilization. We have cut down the woods where the birds lived and built their nests; we have destroyed the weeds which they used for food and for nests; we farm so intensively that there is no seed left for the birds, there is not even against dry grass to make homes.
Against these conditions some species have, of course, held their own and we have these left to study; but the time to watch birds and bird life is during the periods of six weeks in the spring and six in the fall when the migratory birds are on, for then we have more birds with us than the sum total of those remaining during the seasons. This study is interesting and enthralling to the old and young,
and entrancing to the old and young,
and educating and uneducated.

Jones Remembered Many.

When Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones entered the room early in the evening he was greeted with applause and when his portion of the program was announced a louder and more prolonged storm of plaudits sounded in the auditorium. He confessed that he had been drawn here by curiosity—a desire to know how it would seem to be in Janesville. He said though he had been here but a short ten years and had lost twenty-seven years ago, he remembered many faces and it seemed that he had been here a long time and in Chicago but a short time. His work in the latter named place was conceived while here. He had the discussion of the evening had impressed and inspired him and considered it most proper for Lincoln's birthday, Lincoln having been just as tender, just as loving as the study of nature could inspire man to be. He had been asked to talk on birds, which he said he knew far less about than Mr. Skavlen. His "bird-work" had been a twenty-year fight against the use of stuffed birds and feathers on hats. When he joined the movement he believed the war would be short; he thought only a little agitation would arouse the women of fashion to their sin. But there seems to be a lack of abhorrence for the atrocities committed in the name of fashion, an absence of tenderness for bird life.
He had been criticised for spending his time in this agitation when there were souls perishing down in Clark street, Chicago, but he said as long as people have no tenderness, no mercy for birds, there is little hope of those dying spirits having any respect, any esteem, any love for the world. The civic and sociological problems can be solved when we learn from the birds the lesson of buoyancy of spirit from the ant, the willingness to cooperate, for the civic life of the country is far above the selfish, dastardly struggle for existence in Chicago.

You can have an all-powerful stomach and a fetching appetite for every meal and every day, if you give your stomach a rest, and let something else take hold of your food for you and digest it as it comes into the stomach, something that is harmless but that really does the work of digesting quickly and thoroughly.

This "something" is Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, the most effective little tablets in the world for curing anything that may be wrong with your stomach. One ingredient of these precious little workers digests 3,000 grains of the coarsest or richest food put into the stomach. Think of it, 3,000 grains! They are really an artificial stomach, because they act just like the stomach, they digest your food just as though you didn't have a stomach at all. It supplies the stomach with the digestive juices which have become weak and scanty.

Then your indigestion, dyspepsia, sour risings, brash, belchings, acidity, fermentations, loss of appetite, aversion to food, bloated feeling, heartburn, and nausea, will be no more. You can then eat anything you want, all you want, whenever you want, and your nearer to man than any other living creature. The ant lives in communities, builds its cities and highways, raises and educates its young, wages wars for the acquisition of territory or food and sometimes on slighter provocations, keeps slaves, keeps the ants which is to the ant what the cow is to man, and raises food; some students even state that the ant plants the seed for this food. Mr. Mc-Elroy is widely versed in "antology" and furnished a most interesting talk.

It was expert knowledge in English devoid of scientific terms and phrases.
He showed where the ant had found the value of the arch and dome long before man and stated that the mosques of the Soudan were copied from the ants' buildings. The talk was enriched by stories of the ant's achievements which the speaker had witnessed in Janesville.

I. F. Wortendyke having been given the broad subject of "Animals," pleaded for a general study of nature. He told of the gopher's home and method of hiding from man and other enemies, of the field mouse's insect-destroying value, of the muskrat's carefully and wisely constructed "piles", and of the ways of other creatures common hereabouts. With these stories he aroused the interest of his hearers and then asked them to all read more "widely" in the books of nature. The field and forest are far more interesting, far more inspiring than the printed page, he said: the love of nature is a panacea for all the ills of mind and soul. In closing Mr.
Wortendyke asked the fathers present to teach their children to study and love nature; calling such a love a safeguard around the youth, the essence of true virtue and nobility.

Queen Bee From Russia.

In introducing the next speaker, Leader Matheson said that Mr. Harney was the owner of several hives of bees at his home on Wisconsin street and was the proud possessor of a Queen Bee which last summer came direct from Russia. Mr. Harney said there were five distinct classes of bees—the hive, the bumble, the carpenter, the leaf cutting and the stingless honey bee. There was only time for the discussion of the hive bee and there were numerous species of that. None however are native to America, all having been originally imported. The details of the life and ways of the common hive bee were told by Mr. Harney. One interesting point made was that honey bees can be handled without danger. If bees are not struck at or dodged they will not sting. When a bee stings death is soon to follow for each bee has but one sting and cannot exist without it. The bee may not be as interesting a study as the ant, but is more valuable to man.

Game Warden Useless.

Mr. Matheson said he had found it difficult to persuade Halvor L. Skav-
ed. The topic was "Birds" and in
in their study. Southern Wisconsin
is particularly adapted for the study.
We have our birds that remain
we are in the path of travel of the greatest number of North American
now and it is certain that an extinction has been in progress. The so-called "sportsmen" who seem to kill
not guilty of this destruction. All
cannot preserve the game birds. The
responsibility for this disappearance
used for food and for nests; we farm
against dry grass to make homes.
Against these conditions some species
have, of course, held their own and we
migratory birds are on, for then we
enthralling to the old and young,
and entrancing to the old and young,
and educating and uneducated.

The orchestra stand where Knaef & Hatch's eight musicians held sway was gaily decorated with the colors of the order and a fudge of palms and green designed the reception booth where Chancellor Commander Thomas E. Welsh and Mrs. Welsh, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Rexford, and Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker extended hearty greetings to the guests. A sphere of colored lights hung from the center of the ceiling and other appointments contributed to the inviting appearance of the ballroom. E. B. Helmst reet, O. A. Oestreich, Jesse Earle, Allen P. Lovejoy, and David Holmes were the members of the arrangements committee. The three first named, together with George McKey and Stanley Woodruff, served on the floor committee, and members of both were pasty badges of blue.

The opening waltz was played shortly before nine o'clock and the many beautiful gowns worn, the presence of a large number of visitors, and the frank, unaffected enjoyment visible on every face were all contributory factors in the alluring and memorable scene. There were just enough waltz-quadrilles and similar square dances to afford variety and give those who confined themselves to the "round" numbers an opportunity to visit the booth in the northeast corner of the hall where delicious ices and cakes were served throughout the evening. Some of the guests present from out of town were: Miss Helga Heine of Antler, South Dakota; Hal Townsend of Utica, New York; Thomas W. Dunbar of Milwaukee; Frank Kimball of Presho, South Dakota; Miss Donald Seals of Birmingham, Alabama, and Howard Greene and Lucy Fox of Beloit College.

WAITED FOUR WEEKS
FOR FIRST TRAIN

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sanborn Arrive in Janesville from Esmond, North Dakota.

After waiting for four weeks for a train to push through the snow blockade and bring them back to civilized regions, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sanborn of Esmond, North Dakota, arrived in Janesville last Sunday. Esmond is on a branch of the Northern Pacific and was the first branch line dug out. The snow is three feet deep on the level and is badly drifted in many places. Esmond has seven grain elevators, five loaded grain cars lie on the siding waiting for engines to haul them to market. While the food and fuel supply was not exhausted when Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn left it was running very low. What is true of Esmond is true of the majority of the small towns along the branch roads of the Northern Pacific.

King of Denmark

Frederick VIII, the lately ascended ruler of the throne of Denmark, is now 63 years old. As a young lieutenant he was attached to the Nineteenth regiment of the Danish army, and served his time near the little Danish town of Nyborg. He is said to have made himself very popular with his men and to be a good friend-maker among his subjects. In 1863 he entered Oxford university in England, but within a few months he returned to Denmark, owing to the outbreak of war between his country and the Germans. He was, however, afterwards made an LL. D. by the university. He is nevertheless, a warm friend of the present German Kaiser. He had been for many years the actual ruler of Denmark, as his father, Christian IX., was too old to attend to the real duties of state. Denmark's new King is a brother-in-law of the King of England. He is now the undisputed head of the famous Oldenburg family.

SENATOR BAILEY ANGRY.

Urge Probing Committee to Put a Stop to "Insults."

Austin, Tex., Feb. 13—Declaring that "all this prattle is a lie," and urging that the committee interpose and stop these insults offered. United States Senator Joseph W. Bailey brought to a climax Tuesday afternoon one of the most exciting days' session of the legislative committee appointed to investigate certain charges filed against him by Representative Cooke.

This was in reply to a request of Representative Cooke that additional witnesses be summoned by which he hoped to prove that Senator Bailey had borrowed the sum of $7,000 of J. D. Suggs, of Iron county.

When it was suggested that the committee leave at once for St. Louis, where additional testimony is to be taken, Senator Bailey protested that he should not be compelled to go over the country as the principal in an investigation of this nature. It also developed that the committee is adverse to allowing testimony adduced to appear in the record before being censored by a majority of the committee, assisted by Senator Bailey.

ROCKEFELLER'S GIFT

The Wall Street Journal has received three statements relating to Mr. Rockefeller's latest and biggest benefaction. We print all three in order that the different points of view may be brought together. No one of the three is a perfect presentation; indeed each presents a good deal that is false, but perhaps the three taken together may give a fairly accurate composite picture of the truth. The three distinctly differing opinions follow:

I.
The world's greatest philanthropist, John D. Rockefeller, has crowned his long succession of splendid benefactions with the crowning gift of $32,000,000 to the General Educational Fund, making a total of $43,000,000 which he has given to this object. This makes a total of more than $90,000,000 which Mr. Rockefeller has bestowed in charity.

By his genius in the acquisition of wealth and by his benevolence in its distribution, Mr. Rockefeller has enrolled his name on the roster of the benefactors of the race. It is a remarkable fact that both in the methods of acquisition and in the wisdom of distribution of wealth Mr. Rockefeller has enriched the world. His wealth has thus bestowed a double blessing. Through this matchless power of industrial organization, Mr. Rockefeller has been able to develop the national resources of the country. He has established the most perfect system of transportation and marketing of the products in which he has dealt. He has thus increased enormously the wealth of America. Indeed so stupendous has been his contribution to the commonwealth, that the share he has retained for himself, large as it may seem, is after all infinitesimal, as compared with the grand total. Yet out of his own share Mr. Rockefeller, with a superb liberality, is now engaged in devoting millions upon millions to religion, education and charity.

In the acquisition of wealth he has furnished the world with a splendid example of what business organization and combination can accomplish; he has cheapened the price of illuminating oil to all the earth and furnished occupation to tens of thousands of workers. In his distribution of wealth he has with rare wisdom chosen just these objects of his philanthropy as would contribute most to the uplift of the race. Thus in both acquisition and distribution the world is Mr. Rockefeller's debtor.

II.

The world demands justice. It does not crave charity. Mr. Rockefeller's gift of $32,000,000 to the General Educational Fund may ease his conscience, but it will not buy even popularity, much less immunity from public prosecution for the wrongs with which the name of the Standard Oil company has long been identified.

It is significant that this large gift comes almost directly upon the heels of the stinging report of the Interstate Commerce commission upon the relations of common carriers to the Standard Oil company. That report declared that the enormous dividends of the Standard Oil company are not the legitimate result of its economies; that the basis of its monopoly rests upon the pipe line, the possession of which enables it to absolutely control the price of crude petroleum, raising it in one locality and lowering it in another; that it has enjoyed secret rates from the railroads, enjoying all the elements of illegal rates; that many evidences of discrimination in favor of the Standard have been found; that "ruin of its competitors has been a distinct part of the policy of the Standard Oil company, in the past systematically and persistently pursued"; that it has organized a perfect system of espionage over its competitors; that after it has acquired competitive companies it has operated them as if they were still independent, and "the operation of such fake independent concerns has been one of its most effective means of destroying competition"; that "its motto has been the destruction of competition at any cost," so that independents sell most of their products abroad where such methods are not tolerated.

To this terrible indictment of the great monopoly which John D. Rockefeller has built up, he replies with his gift of $32,000,000 to education. Gift? It should be called confession and partial restitution. Every dollar of it has been wrung out of the ruin of countless independent business men. Every dollar has meant a tax upon the community. This $32,000,000 big as it is, is but a part of a year's income of the world's mightiest "robber baron." Let us accept the money—stained as it is—for after all it belongs to us but do not permit it to dull our sense of the wrong which it represents, or check the movement for corporation reform, which under the lead of a courageous president, has at last been begun. It may be added that it is a serious question whether the building up of big endowment funds for colleges is after all a good thing for real education. The endowed college is not necessarily the poor man's college.

III.
The $32,000,000 which Mr. Rockefeller, with that fine business sense that governs all his benefactions, has given to the General Education Fund is the largest individual gift ever made so far as is known in the history of the world. The notable thing is that this immense sum of money which invested at 4 per cent should yield $1,280,000 a year is given to education. The ablest man of business affairs—measured by achievement and power—who has appeared in a century makes this striking tribute to the importance of education. Moreover, the great bulk of the $90,000,000 which he has in recent years given away has gone to the same purpose.

The significance of this can scarcely be over-estimated. Education is the basis of wealth, of power, of civilization. The best educated people—meaning education in its best sense—must necessarily be the most powerful people. This gift is patriotism in concrete form. It creates a fund from which for centuries will flow a stream of benefaction. The best part of it will work for the independence of the class of educators, by providing for their adequate maintenance and provision for old age. This means the permanency of a highly educated class in this country independent of commercialism, the very best aristocracy a nation can possess. Mr. Rockefeller is too far-sighted not to see this, and yet representative as he is of commercialism, he has devoted a part of his wealth to this noble purpose. Let us take off our hats to Mr. Rockefeller.

"YOU'D BE AMUSED"
if you could just sit down for an afternoon in the office of Dr. Richards and watch the flow of people who come and go.

Some to have their teeth treated. Some to make appointments for future work.

Some to talk it over.

Some in desperation, pale, terrified but determined, at last, to let the Dentist do for them what they had so long put off.

With some the door opens slowly, hesitatingly.

Timidly the patient says,

"Are you the Painless dentist?"

Try me and see, says the Doctor, who believes that two minutes of actual demonstration is worth an hour of talk.

The patient soon departs with "the smile that won't soon come off."

Because she has found that there is one dentist anyway in the world, who does do painless work.

They probably had told her that no one could do painless work.

But now she knows better.

See what MRS. MAY HOLDEN of 217 East Merrill St., Beloit, says:

"After suffering for days and days with four ulcerated teeth and being told by Beloit dentists that no one could take them out painlessly,

I went to see Dr. Richards in Janesville;

He positively extracted these four teeth without hurting me. I shall never fear dentistry in the future."

Ask her about it.

Wouldn't it be common, ordinary wisdom to become yourself, a patient of

The man who will not hurt you? Once over Hall & Sayles' Jewelry Store, West Milwaukee street.

Public Library Board Desires to Purchase Books That Public Want.

The new "locomotive books" at the public library, which were mentioned in last evening's Gazette, were purchased as the result of a suggestion. Some time ago a "library" of technical works was purchased and announcement of this addition to the local library shelves was made in the paper. As a result, a number of railroad employees believed the books dealt with locomotive engineering instead of civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering. The demand for locomotive books was then found to exist and an investigation of the market was made. Five books were selected and purchased. In that instance the library board acted on a suggestion given unintentionally. Such suggestions have been sought for many times and are always welcome. On the strength of such recommendations books of all classes, including fiction, have and will be purchased.

A GRAND CLEAN UP OF

Ready-to-Wear Garments—Cloaks, Suits and Skirts

The cash in the till takes up less room than the garments on the racks. This is our excuse at this season of the year for the sweeping price reductions on READY-TO-WEAR GARMENTS. It's a good logical excuse and when the lots offered fill your present needs, then is your opportunity to make your dollars do their full duty.

Fur Coats for Women—Our present stock consists of about 25 reliable fur coats as follows:

We mention the regular selling prices, at which we have held them all the season, but now we offer them at a reduction of 8 to 30 dollars.

Fine Nearseals at $35 to $85; sizes 34 to 46. Wool Seal Auto Coats at $65.

One Beaver Coat, size 40, at $125. One Otter Coat, size 36, at $185.

Surely a better opportunity was never presented to purchase a nice fur coat at such a small price.

Cloth Cloaks—We offer all of our best garments at  $\frac{1}{2}$  price. We have but a few black cloaks left, but emphasize particularly the beautiful light cloaks, many suitable for spring wear, in tans, mixtures, plaids and checks. These desirable cloaks at  $\frac{1}{2}$  price merit the attention they are receiving.

500 Suits, Black Mostly—Never were better suits put on sale at $5.00. Women are buying them eagerly and are thoroughly pleased. These suits are the same that only a few months ago were $10 to $18. The styles are good; simply a matter of getting fitted. Don't forget about these suits, for they are bargains worthy of the name, and will help out many a woman anxious to economize.

Skirts at $2.00—We have about 15 left, that we are closing out to make room for spring arrivals; values up to $12.00.

Probably 90 Altogether—We have two racks of winter cloaks, carried over from 1904 and 1905—cloaks for women, misses and children, and during our January sale we marked them at prices ranging from \$1 to \$10, which were low indeed for the grade of garments. However, to sell out every garment before spring, as we need the room badly, we offer them now at  $\frac{1}{2}$  of the marked down figures. Just think of buying 50c, \$1.00, \$1.50, \$2.00, \$2.50, etc. well made cloaks at such prices as....

95 Gray Wool Skirts—A manufacturer had on hand a quantity of gray all wool cloths and we figured with him to make the lot up into skirts, which he did, and at a price which enables us to offer them, assorted styles and qualities, waist bands 22 to 36 inches, lengths 39 to 43 inches, at $5.75. Any woman looking for a good sensible skirt for service should remember this lot at $5.75. Alterations free.

Satisfied customers are the best advertisement a store can have. We have made many sales on ready-to-wear garments through satisfied customers who have told their neighbors about the bargains they got at THE BIG STORE.
